

Cedar Wax Wings
Fledglings

Fledglings - have proper feathers, can perch and may even be able to flutter short distances. These youngsters often leave the nest and sit on branches nearby, waiting for their parents to return with food. Unless they are in immediate danger, they should be left and observed from a distance. The parents usually come back within a short time. If there are cats around, the young bird can be carefully placed up in the branches of a bush or tree.
